Civil defense officials estimated damages in the $2-million bracket from the tornado that struck Poplar Bluff Thursday morning. Here a tree limb rests on a car. Many cars had windows knocked out by flying debris.

Roof smashed

This twisted wreckage, photographed near 11th Street in Poplar Bluff Thursday, was first believed to be a mobile home, but was later found to be the remains of the roof torn from the Continental Trailways bus station by the tornado that dipped down there Thursday morning.

Work goes on, without roof

An employe of the Continental Trailways bus station in Poplar Bluff handled incoming calls as usual in open air surroundings after a tornado ripped off the station's roof about 8:30 a.m. Thursday. The storm caused considerable damage, but the station remained opened for business.

Jobless rate jumps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate jumped to a post-World War II high of 9.2 per cent in May, but total employment also gained for the second straight month, the government reported today. The report gave some evidence that the job picture is beginning to brighten.

The jobless rate — 8.9 per cent in April — has climbed steadily since last August. This was the first time in 34 years that it exceeded 9 per cent of the work force. In 1941, the jobless rate averaged 9.9 per cent over the year out of a work force of 55.9 million.

The Labor Department said another 360,000 Americans joined the jobless rolls last month, bringing the total number out of work to 8.5 million.

But the number of Americans working also increased in May, rising by 320,000 to a total of 84.4 million.

The size of the labor force was reported up by 680,000 to 92.9 million in May. But because more people went looking for work than there were jobs available, unemployment also increased.

Analysts with the Bureau of Labor Statistics cited the gains in employment over the past two months as a "positive sign" of an improving job picture.

Another indicator was the Labor Department's Diffusion Index which showed that 54 per cent of the 172 industries in the index posted employment gains in May. It was the first time since August that more than half of the industries registered employment increases.

Over the past two months total employment has increased by 550,000, after registering six consecutive monthly declines that totaled 2.6 million.

Nearly all the increase last month was in agricultural employment and involved adult males and teen-agers, the government said.

Despite the gains in employment, joblessness also has continued to increase. Since August it has risen by 3.6 million. Loss of jobs accounted for a large portion of the May unemployment increase, but both new entrants and re-entrants into the labor force also accounted for sizeable increases in joblessness.

Almost all of the May joblessness occurred among men 25 years and over and teen-age women. Most of the other age-sex groups showed little or no change.

Earlier this week, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said a further rise in unemployment is likely because employers may be slow to rehire laid-off workers until they are assured a business recovery is well under way.

According to the administration's latest economic assumptions, unemployment for all of 1975 should average 8.7 per cent instead of the 8.1 per cent originally forecast.

The jobless rate is expected to peak somewhat above 9 per cent and hover there for several months before beginning a gradual decline. The administration's long-range projections show high unemployment until the end of the decade.

Egypt to let cargoes for Israel pass Canal

By The Associated Press

Egypt is going to let cargoes for Israel on ships of other nations go through the Suez Canal soon, but the Egyptians and the Israelis are going to try to keep it quiet in hopes of avoiding adverse reaction from the Syrians and the Palestinians, U.S. officials say.

"There will be no test case," said one American source in Washington. "Our understanding is that the goods will be shipped through without either side acknowledging it."

Other sources said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger expects Egypt to make no attempt to stop nonmilitary cargoes for Israel going through the canal "as long as everyone shuts up."

On Thursday, after President Anwar Sadat of Egypt reopened the canal and began a triumphal, two-day trip down the waterway, Israeli Transport Minister Gad Yaacobi said a Liberian freighter with a cargo of sugar for Israel was headed for the canal and would try to pass through as a test case.

Later, an aide to Yaacobi said the ship "does not exist, and if it does, it is not headed for the canal."

U.S. officials said the backtracking resulted from pressure from Washington. They said the captain of the ship decided on his own to try to use the canal, and when the State Department learned of Yaacobi's disclosure, it warned Israel to stop the attempt.

The sources said the Israeli government ordered the ship to keep out of the canal.

Egypt has barred all Israeli ships and all cargo for Israel on ships of other nations from the canal since Israel became a state in 1948 because Egypt has been at war technically with Israel ever since.

The Egyptians have never acknowledged that Sadat, as part of the disengagement agreement with Israel which Kissinger negotiated in January 1974, agreed to let Israeli cargoes on ships of other nations pass through the waterway when it was reopened. But various American officials have confirmed that Sadat gave such a commitment, apparently in a letter to then-President Richard M. Nixon, who communicated it to the Israelis.

U.S. officials said their major concern is to keep the whole thing quiet and avoid a situation in which Sadat would have to disavow his secret commitment to save face.

Jewelry stolen from home

Burglars took $550 worth of jewelry from the Larry Moore home, 3 Kirkwood Drive, between 4 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday.

Police said the thieves entered the house through the back door.

An unknown number of people apparently held a party in the William Barnes home, 110 Myers Drive, while he and two roommates were out.

Police said soft drink bottles and a bottle of alcoholic beverage were found in the house by Barns. The house was entered through a living room window.

The incident occurred between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. Thursday.

3 burglaries investigated

BENTON—The Scott County Sheriff's Department is investigating three burglaries which occured sometime Thursday.

Thieves took a television set and several pieces of jewelry from the Carl Eftink home on Sikeston Route One.

Entry was gained by breaking a window in the back door.

A burglary was interrupted at 2:45 p.m. Thursday when Larry Boley of Tanner returned to his home and scared off two burglars who fled through the back door. Taken in the burglary were several pieces of jewelry.

A break-in was also reported at the Tee Pee tavern at Kelso. Thieves took an undetermined amount of money from vending machines. The tavern is owned by John Kelly.

Funds available for counties

JEFFERSON CITY — Fred DeField announced today that Mississippi, Scott and Stoddard counties are eligible to receive money under a new program which is being administered by the Missouri State Highway Commission.

Mississippi County can receive $31,145, Scott County $40,021, and Stoddard County $63,913.

The funds are to be used to upgrade and improve county roads and bridge systems. DeField said "With the recent flooding of the Mississippi River, I feel this money will be of considerable help." This is a significant breakthrough since highway funds have traditionally been spent on state and federal highways." The money will be a 70 per cent match by federal funds and can be used to improve roadbeds, replace culverts and bridges. These funds are available immediately and Rep. DeField has indicated that he will be discussing the matter further with Mississippi and Scott county officials.

LILBOURN — Entries are being sought for the Miss New Madrid County beauty pageant to be held at the New Madrid County Vo-Tech School on June 27.

This event is sponsored annually by the Lilbourn Kiwanis Club and the Lilbourn Volunteer Fire Department.

In addition to the title of Miss New Madrid County, the contestants will be competing for first, second and third place cash prizes of $75, $35, and $25 respectively. Entrants must be 15 years old before the day of the contest, residents of New Madrid County, and must be unmarried.

The girls who participate will appear in formal attire and in one-piece swim suits during the event. Sponsors may secure entry blanks from Jim Dambach, Mrs. Junior Ray Tayloror Jim Baughman.

Cape motorist killed

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — Jacob Welker, 53, of Cape Girardeau, was killed Thursday in a two-car accident in this Southeast Missouri community, police said.

Welker died after the vehicle he was riding was sideswiped by a passing car and knocked into a ditch, police said. Another passenger, Dale Clingan, 59, of Poplar Bluff, was seriously injured.

The driver of the other car, Minnie Youngblood of Cape Girardeau, was uninjured, police said.

Church indicates link between CIA and assassinations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Frank Church of the Senate Intelligence Committee indicated today some Central Intelligence Agency assassination plots resulted in murder attempts and left open the possibility that the CIA was indirectly involved in killings.

Meanwhile, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller rejected suggestions that withholding from the public evidence his commission has gathered about CIA involvement in any assassination plots would be perceived as a cover-up.

In a broadcast interview, Church declared: "These plots have been in certain cases more than planned....

"No actual assassinations took place with which the CIA was directly involved," Church said. But he refused to deny that there were any in which the agency was indirectly involved.

The Idaho Democrat was interviewed on the CBS-TV "Morning News."

Rockefeller was to deliver his commission's report on alleged domestic spying by the CIA to President Ford later today.

There was no indication when the report would be made public. Spokesmen, who earlier said they expected the report to be released Sunday, said late this morning the timing of the release was uncertain. 6

The Rockefeller Commission report to the President omits any findings about CIA assassination plots.

"We did not feel we had the full story that would give us the basis for reaching conclusions," Rockefeller told reporters.

Bicycle rodeo is Saturday

A new bicycle will be given away to some lucky child between the ages of 7 and 13 years at the annual bicycle rodeo Saturday.

The rodeo will be held at 10 a.m. in the Bank of Sikeston parking lot.

To be eligible to win the bicycle, the child must have his or her bicycle inspected. Children need not enter the rodeo to win the bike.

Winners in the bicycle rodeo will be eligible to compete in the Mid- South Fair bicycle rodeo at Memphis, Tenn., in September.

The rodeo will end a two-week bicycle safety drive being conducted by the Sikeston Police Department, during which Sgt. Richard Couch, department safety officer, talked with school children in grades three through five and gave them a booklet on bike safety.

"With the steadily increasing use of bicycles in the community for transportation, recreation and pleasure, it is important that safe riding rules be taught to youngsters," Couch said.

He said parents who would never let their children drive a car without learning safety rules will let their children ride a bicycle without learning them.

Parents should impress upon young riders the need for keeping to right side of the road when riding alone and riding in single file if in a group, Couch said.

Publisher at Fredericktown dies today

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Oliver B. Ferguson, publisher of the Fredericktown Democrat-News since 1946, died Thursday night at St. Mary's Health Center, where he was a patient. He was 58.

Ferguson, a native of Fredericktown and a World War II veteran of the Army Air Corps, was past president of the University of Missouri Board of Curators and the Missouri Press association.

He was a 1939 Missouri School of Journalism graduate. Funeral services will be Saturday at 1 p.m. in Mary Parkin Memorial Methodist Church at Fredericktown.

Court okays resolutions for land use measures

NEW MADRID—The New Madrid County Court has approved enabling resolutions for land use and control measures to reduce future flood losses and to implement county planning and zoning, which was approved by the voters last November.

The court has also adopted necessary regulatory codes as a step toward qualifying unincorporated areas for national flood insurance.

County Clerk Jim W. Farrenburg explained that the action by the court will enable citizens in unincorporated areas to continue to be eligible to obtain property loans that may involve federally related financing.

Farrenburg explained enforcement of the regulatory codes will not begin until the county has been identified by the federal government as a flood hazard area or until a study has been completed and a plan approved designating flood prone areas.

The study and plan, to be conducted by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission in Malden, is not expected to be completed for several months, Farrenburg said.

The resolutions and codes adopted by the court, Farrenburg said, were necessary assurances at this time to the federal government that the county intends to meet the regulations for qualifying the unincorporated areas under the National Flood Insurance Act.

The regulatory codes adopted set standards and controls for electrical and plumbing systems, minimum standards for dwellings, fire prevention and construction and control for housing, buildings and other structures.

SEXUAL TITLES, ETC.

Careful readers of these newspapers might have noticed a small change in the last few days. In political stories, we no longer refer to women as "Miss", "Mrs." or "Ms." but instead treat them the way we treat men-that is, last name only.

So far, no one seems especially distressed or especially elated by this change. It probably is insignificant, but it does get to the heart of an issue of sorts in newspaper journalism.

Traditionally, most newspapers have referred to men by their last names on second reference. Traditionally, women have been given titles of courtesy—Miss Smith or Mrs. Brown.

Women began complaining-rightfully, we think-that it was sexist to note a woman's marital status and not a man's,, so they came up with "Ms." which theretofore had meant manuscript, millisecond, master of science, military science, Mississippi, motor ship, multiple sclerosis and even "left hand" (mano sinistra).

Aside from the fact that they might have found a word that was carrying less of a linguistic burden, the inventors seemed to have come up with a workable word. Women who cared about form (and even some who cared about substance) began demanding that they be Mses, and the word quickly found its way into Webster's eighth, though with a definition (used "when the marital status of a woman is unknown") that seems to miss the point.

We began letting the word slip into our papers, and we found it was fine to refer to Gloria Steinem as Ms. or to Roxanne Conlin as Ms.

But "Ms." began greatly to complicate our lives. For while we knew that Ms. Conlin wouldn't object to Ms., how about Sally Glutz from Grundy Center? Were we to telephone her when she rescued her cat from the tree and ask if she preferred to be Miss, Mrs. or Ms.? That is impossible, of course, so editors began guessing.

And, so far, they have never guessed right. Every time we call someone Ms., she most emphatically prefers Miss or Mrs., and she telephones. The Misses prefer Mrs., the Mesdames prefer Mses (the dictionary does not yet list a plural for Ms.) and our Mses prefer Misses, or some such combination.

This caused not only innumerable phone calls and ill will but also a second look at the problem. And then we realized we were taking the wrong approach anyway.

DISCOURAGING TO FARMERS

President Ford has vetoed the Emergency Farm Bill, which was approved by the vote of a big majority representing both parties, in both the House and the Senate.

At the same time he announced he planned to take all controls off the price of crude oil. It was a second blow to farmers, as Agriculture is the single largest user of petroleum products. Taking off price controls on crude will probably result in further high prices for the food producer.

The average of all farm prices is down 7 per cent from a year ago, while the average prices paid by farmers for what they haveto buy is up 11 per cent over a year ago.

The Emergency Farm Bill would have for one year put a floor under farm products, something that is sorely needed if farmers are to be financially able to continue to produce the food the world so vitally needs.

As has been said before, the United States can subsidize just about everything else, and we hear little said about it by the President. If subsidies are permissable for many non-essentials, they are mandatory when it comes to food production.

RECYCLING SUPPORT NEEDED

In the ongoing national effort to conserve energy and reduce pollution,one neglected aspect is the potential for using fewer product materials and recovering more of them through recycling. Yet, as Russell E. Train, administratorof the Environmental Protection Agency, declared recently, this should be of the highest priority.

American industry as a whole simply has not shown the same enthusiasm for reduction and recovery of wastes that it has for finding and developing materials surces, extracting them from the earth. Yet there are rich opportunities for saving throughmaking materials go further in the first place and using them more than once. Recycling of all mixed wastes in the nation's larger urban ares could generate the equivalent of 400,000 barrels of oil daily, y Train's estmate, or nearly a third of the Alaskan pipeline's projectd flow.

To get some idea of the potential, consider that in 1971 packaging alone accounted for nearly 47 per cent of all paper production, 14 per cent of aluminum production, 75 per cent of glass output, 8 per cent of steel and 29 per cent of plastics. Such heavy dedication of resurces to throwaway products which in turn create a heavy burden of wastes to be disposed of is difficult to justify.

The returnable beverage container, the reusable or refillable package, can accomplish wonders of conservation at both ends of the mateials cycle, in both reduced usage and lowered trash wolumes. The corollary benefits from reduced pollution in having fewer wastes to burn or dump are by no means incidental.

Consider the case, for example, of the brown paper gocery sack, made from one of our most costly, disappearing resources. Yet it normally has a useful service life of only minutes between the checkout counter and the time it is discarded, empty but still crisp and new, into a waste container. This is wanton misuse of our resources.

Government programs and demonstration projects to encourage wiser materials use and recycling cannot alone produce results on the necessary scale. It will require a much broader commitment by both industry and individuals to conservation thinking, and it should not have towait until acute materials shortages make such action mandatory.

SAVE THE PORPOISE

The porpoise has a special place in the hearts of those who yearn to safeguard wildlife against man's depredations. Reports of these creatures' intelligence, and of qualities that seem almost human in some respects,makeit all the more worrisome that in recent years hundreds of thousands have died in the nets of the tuna fleets.

The National Marine Fisheries Service has been working intensively to develop ways of reducing this toll. It is heartening to learn that this effort has begun to pay off. After several years with a death count of around 200,000 annually, last year's toll dwindled to 117,000. The agency estimates that during 1975 that figure will be cut in half.

The measures devised impose some costs on tuna fishermen, but the burden is not excessive. With a sharp downward trend in porpoise deaths established, we can anticipate a time when few are needlessly killed.

In a talk at the John F. Museums received the biggest share of the money, followed by symphony orchestras.

McLellan said some 87 per cent of the ten companies studied said they would continue their contributions to the arts in the years ahead.

ANOTHER REFUGEE PROBLEM

WASHINGTON — Waldo Nostrum, who works on refugee problems, was very upset when I saw him in the steam room the other day.

"You don't know what I've been going through," he said.

"You mean with the South Vietnamese refugees?" I asked him.

"No, I'm not working on that problem. I'm dealing with another refugee situation. I'm working on contingency plans in case New York City goes broke. I'm trying to figure out what to do with 7 million refugees who will have to be taken care of when the banks foreclose on Mayor Beame."

I whistled. "Seven million refugees? Do you think they'll all leave the city?"

"What choice do they have?" he said. "They're going to be locked out, and they're going to have to go somewhere. The main problem is that no one in the United States wants them."

"I don't see why. New Yorkers make fine citizens, and they could contribute to any community. I once had a New Yorker for a maid, and she was a wonderful person. She was almost a member of the family."

"They do make good servants," Nostrum agreed. "But not all of them are trained to do housework. Some of them are salesmen, brokers, manufacturers and lawyers. No one wants people like that."

"I see what you mean."

" And that's the language problem," Nostrum told me. "How do you teach 7 million New Yorkers to speak English?"

"Maybe they could go to night school," I suggested.

"We've thought of that. But we also have to take into consideration the culture shock. New Yorkers have their own customs which might seem strange to the rest of the country."

"Such as?"

"Well, they pick up their garbage at 5 o'clock in the morning, and while this may not seem weird to them it could cause problems in places like Peoria and Texarkana. And then New Yorkers talk to themselves all the time. Other people thinkthey're crazy, but actually it's their way of coping with life. One of their traditional customs is to dig up their roads. They revere holes in their streets and never try to fill them in. If they start digging holes in another city, they're going to cause a lot of ill will."

"New Yorkers will just have to be told they can't dig holes if they're accepted in a new community," I said.

"But that's just it," Nostrum said. "No community wants them. Every governor and every mayor we've talked to has said he won't take any. They all say they have no room for them and no funds to care for them until they get assimilated into the American way of life. I honestly believe the real reason, though, is that many of them are prejudiced against New Yorkers."

"Why?" I asked.

"Because most of the governors and mayors have been to New York."

"But you can't be prejudiced against an entire people just because of a few bad apples."

"Which brings me to my next problem. Before we can resettle New Yorkers, we're going to have to give each one of them a security check."

"That's going to take time."

"Don't I know it! But we can't ask the rest of the United States to take these people unless we weed out the people of low moral character. Many New York men were profiteers, and some of he women worked in massage parlors. Also some are known pinkos. These security risks have to be separated from the rest of the population."

"What are yougoing to do with New York City after the banks foreclose on it?" I asked Nostrum.

"The federal government will probably lease it from them."

"What for?"

"To make it into a large refugee camp."

WASHINGTON — An American epic has been unfolding in our back offices. There is no other way to describe it. The story should lift the spirits of those who are depressed over the state of the nation.

It all began quite simply. We invited our readers, even as they were recoiling from the shocks of Watergate and Vietnam, to tall how they felt about America. We suggested that they reduce their sentiments to a slogan for the Bicentennial.

We have been absolutely overwhelmed with responses -- slogans, poems, songs, letters -- from more than 750,000 Americans. Children wrote to us by the tens of thousands -- children like Jane Barry of Medford, Mass., who wrote simply: '..'I am 8 years old, go to Tufts School and I am in the third grade. My slogan is, ..'Beep! Beep! Make way for America!' "

Thousands of schools held contests and sent us the winning slogans. The fifth-grade winner in Springfield, Mass., for example, was Anna Martinez, who offered this: "America is a tune. It must be sung together."

Older Americans also responded en masse, like Mrs. Joseph A. Adamcik, a 64-year-old Baldwin, Calif., grandmother, who submitted this slogan: "America Today for the Best Tomorrows."

There were some sad letters. Helen Debnam, of Byron, Ill., told how her husband had died in Southeast Asia only a month before the truce. "..I am left alone with three children to raise and with a debilitating disease," she wrote. "Still, I am proud to be part of a nation with 'A Heritage So Rich'."

A few letters were bitter. A Vietnam veteran, who preferred not to be named, told how he had been crippled and blinded in one eye. "I'm not a poet, or a song writer. I'm not even a very good letter writer," he began. "What I am is disabled from the Vietnam war, the only war America has lost.

"When I was sent to Vietnam, I felt proud that I could be one of the people to fight for my country. After I was wounded, I had a lot of time to sit and think about my life, and what I would do, or what I COULD do.

"For a long time I did what everyone else did. I blamed America, I cursed her, and I was bitter as hell. Then I got to thinking about all my buddies who gave more than a leg and the sight of an eye ...

"The way I see it, with all that the American people have given the sacrifices, the heartaches, the money, how could we give up on America now? Let's get together now that we're not at war. Let's ..'Keep America First'."

We have received mailbags full of letters like these, thoughtful letters like the one, too, that Fred Diebold of ..Linden, ..N.J., sent us. "With deep sincerity and gratitude," he wrote, "we salute our founding fathes for having had the guts to get involved."

If the slogans keep coming in, we'll soon pass the million mark. Most have been stirring slogans, like the one Mrs. A. B. Shearer of Fontana, Calif., submitted: "Trying Times are Times for Trying." Or as Robert Dielman of Brook, Ind., put it more colloquially: "America, we ain't perfect, but we ain't done."

Engries should be addressed to SLOGANS USA, Box 1976, Washington, D.C. 20013.

But there is more to the story, much more. Not only individuals but many organizations have volunteered to join in the search for a Bicentennial slogan.

Philanthropist Edward J. Piszek was the first to contact us. The Copernicus Society, which he founded, has put up most of the operating expenses and is offering several cash prizes for the best slogans.

The first-place winner will get a 1976 Matador station wagon from American Motors to tour the country, free lodgings for his family for a month at any Holiday Inn and $5,000 from the Copernicus Society to spend on the trip.

Other prize money has been offered by Phillips Petroleum, Pepsico and Gemini Rising. The American Legion and National Jaycees have volunteered to help handle the huge volume of mail.

The American Song Festival will invite composers to set the winning slogans to music. The world-famous organization, Up With ..People, will sing the slogan music around the world.

The International Association of Fairs and Expositions will promote the slogan search at 2,800 fairs across America, and F. W. Woolworth will promote it through their 1,800 retail stores.

The Advertising Council will encourage radio-TV stations and newspapers to join us in calling upon the public to speak up for America. Henry J. Kaufman and Associates has volunteered to handle the advertising campaign.

The American Freedom Train, with its precious load of priceless documents, has given space to the slogans. Major-league baseball, basketball, football and hockey have offered their support.

There isn't space to list all the participating organizations. Here are some of the most active: General Federation of Women's Clubs, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Urban League, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boys Club of America, Johnny Horizon ..Program, American Airlines, Charles Benton's Films Inc. and Reader's Digest.

New Truman Cult: President Ford returns to 'Give 'Em Hell'

WASHINGTON—On the West Coast recently some students crowded around and told me they were "into Harry Truman." Swift translation: they "dig him." Guitar music. Rock and roll thundering about "give 'em hell, Harry."

And back East in the White House Oval Office there's a Truman bust for all to see. President Ford is "into Truman," too. The theory is -- as devised by the inner sanctum strategists -- to give the Congress "hell" right through the presidential campaign. Blame them for the eight or nine million jobless now and the coming failure of some 4.2 million high school and college "kids" to find work this summer and next.

Actually that's about all Jerry Ford can do. Watergate has washed away almost all the presidential powers which Dick Nixon had and used so dramatically between 1970 and 1974.

Aside from the presidential ticket nominations, there you have the real, the basic story of the '76 campaign.

What about the eight or ten million jobless as the campaign builds up, as the convention sites are chosen and as the primaries hurtle in on the nation?

President Ford has read Treasury Department position papers which say that the social and political systems will rock if the economy rolls the wrong way. Yet he appears to be doing little.

Fact is there's little he can do. He has virtually no powers left. Nothing statutory. Nothing but some war-time emergency laws, ancient ones at that. And there is peace.

Congress, which Harry gave such hell so successfully during the '48 campaign, has stripped Mr. Ford. He has no wage-price-stabilization control power with which to bargain or threaten. The courts have taken his power to impound funds. The Federal Reserve controls the money supply.

So he is under constant labor pounding. For example, Teamsters general president Frank Fitzsimmons has been saying he wants full wage-price controls restored. When I asked him if he were serious, he retorted:

"Damn right I am. What point is there in getting my people a $30,000-a-year wage if inflation grinds it down to $15,000 or $17,000?"

And AFL-CIO president George Meany is triphammering away at Ford for vetoing the $5.3 billion Emergency Employment Appropriations Bill for creation of a million jobs. Meany wants a $100 billion deficit. And Leonard Woodcock's United Auto Workers union strike fund now tops $111 million, growing at the rate of over $4 million a month. This warchest may hodl almost $200 million by the fall of '76 when the car industry's contracts expire -- two months before the presidential election.

If there's an auto industry strike then it could have terminal implications for the national economy.

With eight to ten million jobless, as is predicted by some of the Bureau of Labor Statistics watchers and with labor in turmoil, no incumbent President could count on renewal of his White House lease.

Yet Mr. Ford appears to be stumbling into the campaign's last laps as he did into Austria. There doesn't seem to be any policy.

But there is. He's gambling on recovery by fighting inflation. He isn't yielding to the labor chiefs who have been hammering him publicly and pressuring him and his aides privately to approve heavier spending. He's convinced the recession is bottoming out. He believes next year will see lower interest rates, lower unemployment, higher auto production and increased housing starts. He just doesn't believe, as does Meany, that Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns should be shipped "over to the Soviet Union" or fired. Which, of course, couldn't be done.

President Ford and Burns don't want to do what Abe Lincoln once advised Secretary of the Treasury Chase to do -- give the printing presses another whirl at turning out paper money.

Mr. Ford, therefore, is fighting inflation and not the recession. He's vetoing and will continue to veto money spending bills. He'll veto the upcoming $5 billion public works bill. He truly means to hold down that deficit.

With the foreign trip out of the way, despite the Middle East and possibly the Korean crises, the fighting front is the domestic one. The economy.

Since the Congress has "Watergated" the presidential powers down the drain, Jerry Ford really can only lash out in Truman style. Mr. Ford will do just that, in city after city, farm areas and before business groups and labor. It is presumed he'll be invited to the AFL-CIO national convention opening in San Francisco Oct. 2.

That would give him a chance to test the political waters a year in advance of the election as did Dick Nixon back in 1971.

And if the Trumanesque offensive fails, if the recession hasn't bottomed out, if the jobless still number eight to ten million, if the streets echo from bitter demonstrations and the economic war has been lost, why, then it will all be over before the 1976 nominating convention. Jerry Ford just won't run. But all he really can do now is "give 'em hell." And not spend and spend and spend as one depression President did futilely back in the '30s.

The porpoise has a special place in the hearts of those who yearn to safeguard wildlife against man's depredations. Reports of these creatures' intelligence, and of qualities that seem almost human in some respects,makeit all the more worrisome that in recent years hundreds of thousands have died in the nets of the tuna fleets.

The National Marine Fisheries Service has been working intensively to develop ways of reducing this toll. It is heartening to learn that this effort has begun to pay off. After several years with a death count of around 200,000 annually, last year's toll dwindled to 117,000. The agency estimates that during 1975 that figure will be cut in half.

The measures devised impose some costs on tuna fishermen, but the burden is not excessive. With a sharp downward trend in porpoise deaths established, we can anticipate a time when few are needlessly killed.

Museums received the biggest share of the money, followed by symphony orchestras.

McLellan said some 87 per cent of the ten companies studied said they would continue their contributions to the arts in the years ahead.

ANOTHER REFUGEE PROBLEM

WASHINGTON — Waldo Nostrum, who works on refugee problems, was very upset when I saw him in the steam room the other day.

"You don't know what I've been going through," he said.

"You mean with the South Vietnamese refugees?" I asked him.

"No, I'm not working on that problem. I'm dealing with another refugee situation. I'm working on contingency plans in case New York City goes broke. I'm trying to figure out what to do with 7 million refugees who will have to be taken care of when the banks foreclose on Mayor Beame."

I whistled. "Seven million refugees? Do you think they'll all leave the city?"

"What choice do they have?" he said. "They're going to be locked out, and they're going to have to go somewhere. The main problem is that no one in the United States wants them."

"I don't see why. New Yorkers make fine citizens, and they could contribute to any community. I once had a New Yorker for a maid, and she was a wonderful person. She was almost a member of the family."

"They do make good servants," Nostrum agreed. "But not all of them are trained to do housework. Some of them are salesmen, brokers, manufacturers and lawyers. No one wants people like that."

"I see what you mean."

" And that's the language problem," Nostrum told me. "How do you teach 7 million New Yorkers to speak English?"

"Maybe they could go to night school," I suggested.

"We've thought of that. But we also have to take into consideration the culture shock. New Yorkers have their own customs which might seem strange to the rest of the country."

"Such as?"

"Well, they pick up their garbage at 5 o'clock in the morning, and while this may not seem weird to them it could cause problems in places like Peoria and Texarkana. And then New Yorkers talk to themselves all the time. Other people thinkthey're crazy, but actually it's their way of coping with life. One of their traditional customs is to dig up their roads. They revere holes in their streets and never try to fill them in. If they start digging holes in another city, they're going to cause a lot of ill will."

"New Yorkers will just have to be told they can't dig holes if they're accepted in a new community," I said.

"But that's just it," Nostrum said. "No community wants them. Every governor and every mayor we've talked to has said he won't take any. They all say they have no room for them and no funds to care for them until they get assimilated into the American way of life. I honestly believe the real reason, though, is that many of them are prejudiced against New Yorkers."

"Why?" I asked.

"Because most of the governors and mayors have been to New York."

"But you can't be prejudiced against an entire people just because of a few bad apples."

"Which brings me to my next problem. Before we can resettle New Yorkers, we're going to have to give each one of them a security check."

"That's going to take time."

"Don't I know it! But we can't ask the rest of the United States to take these people unless we weed out the people of low moral character. Many New York men were profiteers, and some of he women worked in massage parlors. Also some are known pinkos. These security risks have to be separated from the rest of the population."

"What are yougoing to do with New York City after the banks foreclose on it?" I asked Nostrum.

"The federal government will probably lease it from them."

"What for?"

"To make it into a large refugee camp."

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

—New Truman Cult: President Ford returns to 'Give 'Em Hell'

WASHINGTON—On the West Coast recently some students crowded around and told me they were "into Harry Truman." Swift translation: they "dig him." Guitar music. Rock and roll thundering about "give 'em hell, Harry."

And back East in the White House Oval Office there's a Truman bust for all to see. President Ford is "into Truman," too. The theory is -- as devised by the inner sanctum strategists -- to give the Congress "hell" right through the presidential campaign. Blame them for the eight or nine million jobless now and the coming failure of some 4.2 million high school and college "kids" to find work this summer and next.

Actually that's about all Jerry Ford can do. Watergate has washed away almost all the presidential powers which Dick Nixon had and used so dramatically between 1970 and 1974.

Aside from the presidential ticket nominations, there you have the real, the basic story of the '76 campaign.

What about the eight or ten million jobless as the campaign builds up, as the convention sites are chosen and as the primaries hurtle in on the nation?

President Ford has read Treasury Department position papers which say that the social and political systems will rock if the economy rolls the wrong way. Yet he appears to be doing little.

Fact is there's little he can do. He has virtually no powers left. Nothing statutory. Nothing but some war-time emergency laws, ancient ones at that. And there is peace.

Congress, which Harry gave such hell so successfully during the '48 campaign, has stripped Mr. Ford. He has no wage-price-stabilization control power with which to bargain or threaten. The courts have taken his power to impound funds. The Federal Reserve controls the money supply.

So he is under constant labor pounding. For example, Teamsters general president Frank Fitzsimmons has been saying he wants full wage-price controls restored. When I asked him if he were serious, he retorted:

"Damn right I am. What point is there in getting my people a $30,000-a-year wage if inflation grinds it down to $15,000 or $17,000?"

And AFL-CIO president George Meany is triphammering away at Ford for vetoing the $5.3 billion Emergency Employment Appropriations Bill for creation of a million jobs. Meany wants a $100 billion deficit. And Leonard Woodcock's United Auto Workers union strike fund now tops $111 million, growing at the rate of over $4 million a month. This warchest may hodl almost $200 million by the fall of '76 when the car industry's contracts expire -- two months before the presidential election.

If there's an auto industry strike then it could have terminal implications for the national economy.

With eight to ten million jobless, as is predicted by some of the Bureau of Labor Staistics watchers and with labor in turmoil, no incumbent President could count on renewal of his White House lease.

Yet Mr. Ford appears to be stumbling into the campaign's last laps as he did into Austria. There doesn't seem to be any policy.

But there is. He's gambling on recovery by fighting inflation. He isn't yielding to the labor chiefs who have been hammering him publicly and pressuring him and his aides privately to approve heavier spending. He's convinced the recession is bottoming out. He believes next year will see lower interest rates, lower unemployment, higher auto production and increased housing starts. He just doesn't believe, as does Meany, that Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns should be shipped "over to the Soviet Union" or fired. Which, of course, couldn't be done.

President Ford and Burns don't want to do what Abe Lincoln once advised Secretary of the Treasury Chase to do -- give the printing presses another whirl at turning out paper money.

Mr. Ford, therefore, is fighting inflation and not the recession. He's vetoing and will continue to veto money spending bills. He'll veto the upcoming $5 billion public works bill. He truly means to hold down that deficit.

With the foreign trip out of the way, despite the Middle East and possibly the Korean crises, the fighting front is the domestic one. The economy.

Since the Congress has "Watergated" the presidential powers down the drain, Jerry Ford really can only lash out in Truman style. Mr. Ford will do just that, in city after city, farm areas and before business groups and labor. It is presumed he'll be invited to the AFL-CIO national convention opening in San Francisco Oct. 2.

That would give him a chance to test the political waters a year in advance of the election as did Dick Nixon back in 1971.

And if the Trumanesque offensive fails, if the recession hasn't bottomed out, if the jobless still number eight to ten million, if the streets echo from bitter demonstrations and the economic war has been lost, why, then it will all be over before the 1976 nominating convention. Jerry Ford just won't run. But all he really can do now is "give 'em hell." And not spend and spend and spend as one depression President did futilely back in the '30s.

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — An American epic has been unfolding in our back offices. There is no other way to describe it. The story should lift the spirits of those who are depressed over the state of the nation.

It all began quite simply. We invited our readers, even as they were recoiling from the shocks of Watergate and Vietnam, to tall how they felt about America. We suggested that they reduce their sentiments to a slogan for the Bicentennial.

We have been absolutely overwhelmed with responses -- slogans, poems, songs, letters -- from more than 750,000 Americans. Children wrote to us by the tens of thousands -- children like Jane Barry of Medford, Mass., who wrote simply: '..'I am 8 years old, go to Tufts School and I am in the third grade. My slogan is, ..'Beep! Beep! Make way for America!' "

Thousands of schools held contests and sent us the winning slogans. The fifth-grade winner in Springfield, Mass., for example, was Anna Martinez, who offered this: "America is a tune. It must be sung together."

Older Americans also responded en masse, like Mrs. Joseph A. Adamcik, a 64-year-old Baldwin, Calif., grandmother, who submitted this slogan: "America Today for the Best Tomorrows."

There were some sad letters. Helen Debnam, of Byron, Ill., told how her husband had died in Southeast Asia only a month before the truce. "..I am left alone with three children to raise and with a debilitating disease," she wrote. "Still, I am proud to be part of a nation with 'A Heritage So Rich'."

A few letters were bitter. A Vietnam veteran, who preferred not to be named, told how he had been crippled and blinded in one eye. "I'm not a poet, or a song writer. I'm not even a very good letter writer," he began. "What I am is disabled from the Vietnam war, the only war America has lost.

"When I was sent to Vietnam, I felt proud that I could be one of the people to fight for my country. After I was wounded, I had a lot of time to sit and think about my life, and what I would do, or what I COULD do.

"For a long time I did what everyone else did. I blamed America, I cursed her, and I was bitter as hell. Then I got to thinking about all my buddies who gave more than a leg and the sight of an eye ...

"The way I see it, with all that the American people have given the sacrifices, the heartaches, the money, how could we give up on America now? Let's get together now that we're not at war. Let's ..'Keep America First'."

We have received mailbags full of letters like these, thoughtful letters like the one, too, that Fred Diebold of ..Linden, ..N.J., sent us. "With deep sincerity and gratitude," he wrote, "we salute our founding fathes for having had the guts to get involved."

If the slogans keep coming in, we'll soon pass the million mark. Most have been stirring slogans, like the one Mrs. A. B. Shearer of Fontana, Calif., submitted: "Trying Times are Times for Trying." Or as Robert Dielman of Brook, Ind., put it more colloquially: "America, we ain't perfect, but we ain't done."

Engries should be addressed to SLOGANS USA, Box 1976, Washington, D.C. 20013.

But there is more to the story, much more. Not only individuals but many organizations have volunteered to join in the search for a Bicentennial slogan.

Philanthropist Edward J. Piszek was the first to contact us. The Copernicus Society, which he founded, has put up most of the operating expenses and is offering several cash prizes for the best slogans.

The first-place winner will get a 1976 Matador station wagon from American Motors to tour the country, free lodgings for his family for a month at any Holiday Inn and $5,000 from the Copernicus Society to spend on the trip.

Other prize money has been offered by Phillips Petroleum, Pepsico and Gemini Rising. The American Legion and National Jaycees have volunteered to help handle the huge volume of mail.

The American Song Festival will invite composers to set the winning slogans to music. The world-famous organization, Up With ..People, will sing the slogan music around the world.

The International Association of Fairs and Expositions will promote the slogan search at 2,800 fairs across America, and F. W. Woolworth will promote it through their 1,800 retail stores.

The Advertising Council will encourage radio-TV stations and newspapers to join us in calling upon the public to speak up for America. Henry J. Kaufman and Associates has volunteered to handle the advertising campaign.

The American Freedom Train, with its precious load of priceless documents, has given space to the slogans. Major-league baseball, basketball, football and hockey have offered their support.

There isn't space to list all the participating organizations. Here are some of the most active: General Federation of Women's Clubs, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Urban League, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boys Club of America, Johnny Horizon ..Program, American Airlines, Charles Benton's Films Inc. and Reader's Digest.

Highway Patrol says schools out: caution

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri motorists are being urged by Col. Sam S. Smith, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, to use extra caution now that schools have closed for summer vacation.

"Thousands of Missouri children are now out of school for summer vacation," Smith noted. "Many of them will be playing near or in traffic during the next few months and enjoying themselves. Motorists should be watchful for these vacationing youngsters and expect them to do the unexpected."

The patrol superintendent noted that 36 pedestrians, 14 years of age and younger, were killed last year in Missouri traffic accidents. Ten bicyclists in this same group were fatally injured in collisions with motor vehicles during 1974.

"Motorists must be alert and drive defensively when near young pedestrians and bicyclists," Smith continued. "They should anticipate any sudden moves the youngsters might make that could cause a collision. I urge all drivers to be extra watchful for children now that schools have closed for summer vacation."

Land given to school

COLUMBIA--A 12.5 acre tract of land east of Portageville has been given to the University of Missouri by Michael G. and Charlotte McCrate of Cape Girardeau for use by the Delta Research Center.

McCrate is a Realtor and member of a pioneer portageville family.

The tract lies along Interstate 55 and borders one of the three tracts that now comprise the Delta Center, which is administered by the College of Agriculture at the Columbia campus.

The addition of the tract brings the total area of the Delta Research Center to 932.5 acres. A staff of more than 100 is involved in research and extension activities at the center.

Major emphasis is on cotton and soybean research in the areas of plant breeding and farming techniques. Research at the center has resulted in the development of new strains of cotton more adaptable to Missouri climatic conditions.

All land at the center was obtained by the university through donation by individuals.

Highway Patrol says schools out: caution

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri motorists are being urged by Col. Sam S. Smith, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, to use extra caution now that schools have closed for summer vacation.

"Thousands of Missouri children are now out of school for summer vacation," Smith noted. "Many of them will be playing near or in traffic during the next few months and enjoying themselves. Motorists should be watchful for these vacationing youngsters and expect them to do the unexpected."

The patrol superintendent noted that 36 pedestrians, 14 years of age and younger, were killed last year in Missouri traffic accidents. Ten bicyclists in this same group were fatally injured in collisions with motor vehicles during 1974.

"Motorists must be alert and drive defensively when near young pedestrians and bicyclists," Smith continued. "They should anticipate any sudden moves the youngsters might make that could cause a collision. I urge all drivers to be extra watchful for children now that schools have closed for summer vacation."

Land given to school

COLUMBIA--A 12.5 acre tract of land east of Portageville has been given to the University of Missouri by Michael G. and Charlotte McCrate of Cape Girardeau for use by the Delta Research Center.

McCrate is a Realtor and member of a pioneer portageville family.

The tract lies along Interstate 55 and borders one of the three tracts that now comprise the Delta Center, which is administered by the College of Agriculture at the Columbia campus.

The addition of the tract brings the total area of the Delta Research Center to 932.5 acres. A staff of more than 100 is involved in research and extension activities at the center.

Major emphasis is on cotton and soybean research in the areas of plant breeding and farming techniques. Research at the center has resulted in the development of new strains of cotton more adaptable to Missouri climatic conditions.

All land at the center was obtained by the university through donation by individuals.

"Before the creation of the world God chose us to be his own consecrated people, and live lives faultless in his sight." (Ephesians 1:4, BARCLAY)

PRAYER: Almighty God, for all things in heaven and in earth under Your dominion, we do praise You. Grant us faith, strength, and knowledge that we may do Your will to make this the kind of world You would have it be. Teach us how to feel and care for the bigger world, the world for everyone. Amen.

Secrecy declining but still exists

NEW YORK (AP) — Secrecy is a declining practice in the churches. They've become increasingly open about their official discussions, decisions and operations. But just as in government, concealment — and at times deceptions — still occur.

In some cases, there are closed meetings, confidential reports, hidden agendas, unrevealed actions.

Yet the churches, like other public and governmental institutions, represent people, are supported by the people's money and the eople consequently are entitled toknow what goes on, says Richard N. Ostling, president of the treligion Newswriters Association.

While the churches generally affirm that principle, he writes in a book issued by Harper and Row, "Secrecy in the Church," they sometimes don't live up to it. Take some recent examples:

—Roman Catholic bishops, at their annual meeting last fall, acted in closed session on a matter of obvious concern both to church members and the public, but afterward wouldn't reveal it. Reporters queried usually candid friends among them, but they wouldn't tell. Their then president, John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, had admonished them to silence.

Finally, however, through one bishop who believed in leveling with the people on an action involving them, the facts were brought out: A committee had been authorized to raise questions with congressional committees to confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president because of his pro-abortion stand. Only after newsmen dug it out, through a lone bishop against hiding it, was an action on a clearly public issue officially acknowledged.

—In another case, the interdenominational relief agency supported by most major Protestant and Orthodox churches, Church World Service, recently was involved in a policy controversy over whether it should oppose oppressive governing systems overseas as well as doing direct relief work.

An emergency meeting of its 30-member executive board met to consider the dispute, but reporters were barred and official statements afterward were ambiguous.

Emphasizing that church leaders are "accountable to their members," he observes:

Cerullo says now is time to sid Asiam free nations

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—International Evangelist Morris Cerullo declares that the fall of Vietnam to the Communists is a clear warning to Christians everywhere that now is the time to act on behalf of those nations that are still free.

The Rev. Mr. Cerullo, whose massive overseas evangelistic crusades have sometimes attracted as many as 120,000 people to a single service, had a first hand look at the Vietnam situation on Easter of 1966 when he met with the then ambassador, Henry Cabot Lodge, and the U.S. commander, Gen. William Westmoreland, to present Bibles and to minister to American troops.

"To argue or even discuss the merits of this war is now useless," the Rev. Mr. Cerullo declared from the headquarters of World Evangelism, Inc. in San Diego, "but it is a warning that we as god's children must be more concerned because we have lost yet another country to the atheistic, godless forces of communism.

"The objective of the Communists is apparent...the total takeover of all Asia, which includes India, Laos, Thailand and the strategic Philippine Islands.

"I have been in many a country where Communists have caused revolutions, and they have been stopped...not by tanks or bullets...but through the power of God and prayer.

"Now more than ever before we must increase our efforts to reach these nations while there is still time."

In line with his own admonition, the Rev. Mr. Cerullo is preparing for a mass overseas crusade in Cebu City in the Philippines Aug. 7-10.

"I believe the next great onslaught of the Communists after Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia and Thailand will be the Phillippine Islands," he says. "I believe if we train enough nationals, no matter what the Communists do...push the missionaries out, send the Americans home...we will have entrenched an army of God's soldiers who are unbeatable!"

Hikers raise mission funds

Hikers from First Assembly of God Church will complete a 20-mile walkathon for missions from Dexter to Sikeston Saturday. The walkathon started last Saturday morning but was halted due to heavy rain when most of the walkers had covered about half the distance. Two hikers did go on to finish the walk, however.

Rain-delayed walkathon will resume Saturday

About 20 of the youth of First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway, participated in a 20-mile walkathon that began last Saturday at the Dexter radio station on Highway 114 with First Assembly in Sikeston as its destination before being halted by rain about midway through the hike.

The walk, to raise funds for missionaries, started at 7:45 a.m. and went fine for the first four or five miles; and then the rain began. The walkers continued another six or seven miles (some were ahead of others), but by 11:45 a.m., the rain was continuously heavy and the leaders decided to postpone the remainder of the walk until this Saturday because of the danger of walking along the highway with the vision of motorists hampered by the rain.

In spite of the official postponement, two of the walkers were determined to finish, and they did. Terry Jones and Barry Ballard finished the 20-mile hike about 2 p.m.

Also, the Rev. Gary Denbow, a former Sikeston resident presently living in Springfield and serving as the district youth and education director of the Southern Missouri District of the Assemblies of God, walked with the group and was well ahead of everyone except Ballard and Jones.

The officers of the youth group, Sharon Savage, president; Stephen Aldrich, vice president; Brenda Ballard Secretary Treasurer; and Judy Meyers, chairman of Speed the Light, express their gratitude to everyone who helped by sponsoring the walkers by pledging a certain amount for each mile walked.

After the conclusion of the walk tomorrow, the walkathon will have raised more than $1,000. The money will be used to buy equipment for Assemblies of God missionaries around the world. The total goal for First Assembly's youth this year is $6,547.50 for mission projects.

Other walkers included the Rev. Len Meyers, the associate pastor; Sharon Savage; Tammy Green; Julie Castleberry; Terry Jones; Barry Ballard; Brad Ballard; John Bixler; Tim Drake; Rick Green; Randy Green; Tim Castleberry; Stephen Aldrich; Nancy Wisdom; Tammy Bixler, Theresa Bixler; Candy Teague; Dave Hammock; Marsha Newman; Bob Bost; Mark Savage; and Brenda Hunt.

Scottish church's gift to New World

By David Poling

At the beginning of the American adventure 200 years ago, the Scots sent some large gifts to the New World. Along with the migration of hard-working, disciplined people came the concept of freedom of religion, a yearning for free public education and a careful eye on people in public life.

Their theology informed them about the depravity of man and their experience in politics confirmed that judgment. There were no Watergates because no one was trusted with all the machinery of government. Checks and balances emerged in our system out of the theological perspective of the Calvinistic view of man and his temptations.

The Scots have never been lavish in their gifts: frurality is the best description for the old country. Yet they gave the essentials and high on the list for the New World were the pastors who accompanied the first settlements. In upstate New York, entire villages arrived in a package, in places like Caledonia and Scottsville, with clergy among the first settlers.

The enduring gift from the Scottish church has been the amazing quality of great preachers who came to Canada and the United States. And close to this tradition that has lasted for centuries is the mystical expression — the inner spiritual life that is so contagious and refreshing when understood.

Twenty-five years ago John Baille (who with his brother, Donald, spent several years in study in the United States) published his "Diary of Private Prayer." Within months it zoomed to the top of the sales list and is firmly established in the hearts of millions of people. For more than a decade it was the gift to graduating high school seniors.

Now a new paperback has arrived and quietly worked its way into my thought and prayer patterns and seems destined to join the Baille book as a gift from the Scottish spiritual treasury. Barrie Shepherd, popular college pastor at the College of Wooster and graduate of New College, Edinburgh brings the thoughts of a glad and trusting heart. In his "Diary of Daily Prayer" (Augsburg Pub. House, Minneapolis) the author expands the boundries of mind and spirit, urges us to honesty and affection and admits failure and loss. A morning prayer of his says simply and profoundly:

"Lord, I will need
your support this day,
not only when I fail,
but also when I succeed.
For my successes
seem to set me even farther from you,
and from my fellow human beings.

When I fail,
I learn a lesson
in humility, if nothing else.
Failure makes me realize, even more,
my complete dependence upon you,
and upon other people.

But whenever I manage
to accomplish some great achievement,
I am on my own and proud of it,
dependent upon no one,
supreme master of my fate.

Every servics has been different from the rest, according to the Rev. Loren Wooten, pastor, who describes the morning meetings as a spiritual awakening to God's plan for every believer's daily life, based on the ministry of the Holy Spirit and and the evening meetings as "an indoor camp meeting."

The Rev. K.L. Claycomb

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

THE BIBLE

No. 190. Hezekiah Destroys the Idols

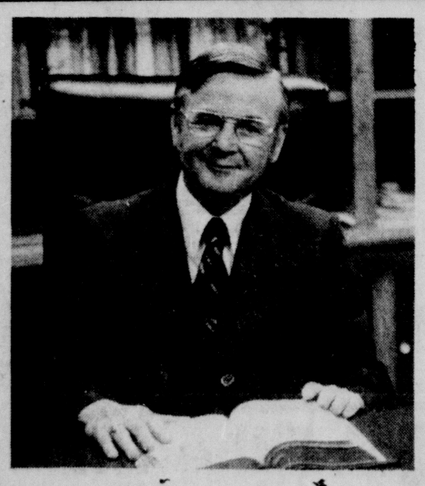

When Hezekiah, the son of Ahaz and Abi, was twenty-five years of age, he came to the throne and began a twenty-nine year reign which was characterized by military success and spiritual rejuvenation.

"And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that David his father did. He removed the high places, and brake the images, and cut down the groves, and brake in pieces the brazen serpent that Moses had made: for unto those days the children of Israel did burn incense to it: and he called it Nehushtan." (II Kings 18:3-4)

Thus, Hezekiah kept the Lord's commandments, and he and his people prospered.

Within months it zoomed to the top of the sales list and is firmly established in the hearts of millions of people. For more than a decade it was the gift to graduating high school seniors.

Now a new paperback has arrived and quietly worked its way into my thought and prayer patterns and seems destined to join the Baille book as a gift from the Scottish spiritual treasury. Barrie Shepherd, popular college pastor at the College of Wooster and graduate of New College, Edinburgh brings the thoughts of a glad and trusting heart. In his "Diary of Daily Prayer" (Augsburg Pub. House, Minneapolis) the author expands the boundries of mind and spirit, urges us to honesty and affection and admits failure and loss. A morning prayer of his says simply and profoundly:

"Lord, I will need
your support this day,
not only when I fail,
but also when I succeed.
For my successes
seem to set me even farther from you,
and from my fellow human beings.

When I fail,
I learn a lesson
in humility, if nothing else.
Failure makes me realize, even more,
my complete dependence upon you,
and upon other people.

But whenever I manage
to accomplish some great achievement,
I am on my own and proud of it,
dependent upon no one,
supreme master of my fate.

The POWER of FAITH

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

THE BIBLE

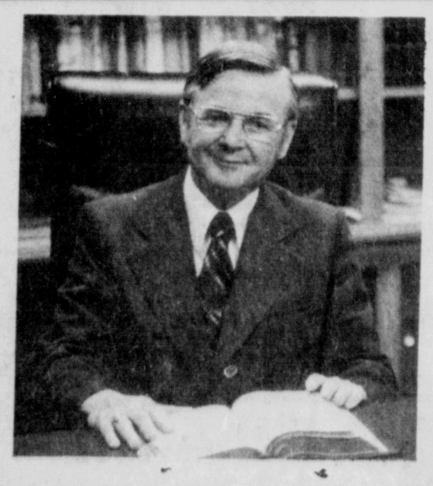

No. 190. Hezekiah Destroys the Idols

When Hezekiah, the son of Ahaz and Abi, was twenty-five years of age, he came to the throne and began a twenty-nine year reign which was characterized by military success and spiritual rejuvenation.

"And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that David his father did. He removed the high places, and brake the images, and cut down the groves, and brake in pieces the brazen serpent that Moses had made: for unto those days the children of Israel did burn incense to it: and he called it Nehushtan." (II Kings 18:3-4)

Thus, Hezekiah kept the Lord's commandments, and he and his people prospered.

University recruiter to talk with students

PORTAGEVILLE — Connie Houghton of the University of Missouri- Columbia is interviewing prospective students for the campus in the Bootheel during the early days of June. She is a member of the student consultation program, a statewide venture sponsored by the Columbia campus.

Miss Houghton, a native of Hamilton, is a senior majoring in animal husbandry and preveterinary medicine.

For years she has raised prize sheep and cattle showing them in fairs around the state. Blue ribbons she won fill many boxes — evidence not only of the quality of her animals but of her ability in showmanship.

Any student interested in conferring with Miss Houghton about the opportunities on the University of Missouri campus may schedule an appointment by calling the University of Missouri Delta Center at telephone number, 379-5431.

Doggy bag compulsion

The first time I asked for a "doggy bag" in a restaurant, my three-year-old jumped up and down, clapped her hands excitedly andsaid, "Oh, Mommy, does that mean we're going to get a dog?"

I stuffed a hard roll in the kid's mouth and said, "We are certainly going to talk about it when we get in the car."

And we certainly did. I explained to her that I came from a family tha not only ate everything on their plate, but had to fight the compulsion to go around and eat what everyone else had left.

My determination to prove "you can take it with you when you go" has been a constant source of embarrassment to my family. Through the years, I have "bagged" the following variety of goodies for my nonexistent dogs:

A chocolate eclair for my French Poodle.

Stew for my Irish setter.

Baked beans for my Boston terrier.

Plum pudding for my Brittany spaniel.

Potato pancakes for my German shepherd.

An enchilada for my Mexican Chihuahua.

The other night as I was negotiating to transport ½ cup stale beer "for my Saint Bernard with a problem" my husband grimaced and said, "This has got to stop."

"Stop!" I said. "It's just beginning. Why, even etiquette experts say it is all right to use doggy bags. Name one reason why I shouldn't take leftover food home."

"The car smells like liver."

"Name another."

"Our refrigerator has food with so many teeth marks, it looks like an orthodontist's workshop."

"Now you are being ridiculous. Doggy bags are in. I got an invitation just the other day that said BYOB -- bring your own bag."

"That's bottle!"

"So, whatever you want to bring home."

"All I know is I'd feel like a fool asking," he said, "especially when we don't even have a dog."

"All you have to do is open your mouth and ask. It's easy."

The waitress appeared at the table. "Couldn't eat all of your pizza, sir?"

"Right," he smiled, "but luckily, I have this English sheep dog at home who has this craving for Italian food. Do you suppose she is trying to tell us something?"

The waitress came back and handed him a slip of paper. "Here's the name of a good vet. In the meantime, I'd try a bland diet."

The home freezer offers the frugal homemaker the opportunity to take advantage of the garden abundance, the supermarket beef sale and produce specials, ... etc.

But, freezing isn't just unloading the market basket or grocery cart into frigid storage!

The freezer temperature should be maintained at zero degrees Fahrenheit or lower; only at this temperature are you assured that the nutritive value will almost equal that of fresh food.

Ann Landers

Father nails telephone cord to floor

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago our daughter took the kitchen telephone down the hall and into the clothes closet so she could speak to her boyfriend privately. This made her father very angry. He never liked the boy and resented our daughter doing this.

That same evening my husband took a hammer and some long nails and fastened the telephone cord to the floor, leaving a very short cord.

I have always enjoyed visiting on the phone while seated at the breakfast table, especially while I'm cooking or baking or just having a cup of coffee. Now I'm reduced to sitting on the kitchen floor whenever I want to use the phone for any length of time. I'm 52 years old! It's downright degrading!

I've tried to reason with my husband but he turns a deaf ear. He's a good man in many ways and I need his financial support. Besides, you just don't divorce a man over a thing like this. What shall I do? -- Humiliated

Dear Hum: Getthat hammer and remove those nails. You aren't a child who should be punished merely because your husband is trying to get even with his daughter. It's time you let him know it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is paying alimony to two women. He has shelled out faithfully every month for many years.

First complaint: Ex-Wife Number One takes my husband to court regularly to get more money. She is now trying for additional "child-support" for a 20-year-old hulk who has a high-paying job. (My husband and I have two children from that marriage living with us.)

Second complaint: Why must a man pay alimony to an ex-wife (Number Two) who could work and make a substantial salary (she did before they were married) but now refuses to get off her fat can and earn a dollar?

Don't divorced men have the right to be free of harassment and punishment from previous wives? My husband and I need relief. We are grandparents, have two sons in college, children from my first marriage, aging parents and heavy financial obligations. When will ex-husbands be liberated? -- Angry At The System

Dear Angry: I agree that alimony lawsaregrossly unfair and should be revised sharply. However, in instances where after several years of faithful service, a wife has been dumped for a younger model and minor children are involved, I say let him pay through the nose.

Dear Ann Landers: I envy "Fed Up With Them." She described her 53-year-old mother as a bleached blonde, no-bra swinger who made cow eyes at every male on the block. Grandpa was a sourpuss -- never a smile or a kind word for anybody.

My parents are dead, rest their souls, but my husband's folks are a couple of kooks who haven't drawn a sober breath in 20 years. They have ruined every holiday and family reunion as far back as I can remember. Please say a few words about alcoholism disguised as "social drinking." Thanks. -- Also Fed

Dear Fed: I have -- repeatedly -- but I'll do it again. Alcoholism, which often masquerades as social drinking, has ruined more marriages, careers, healthy bodies and fine minds than any single element known to man.

D on't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Swing sets called dangerous

Remember when the playground was the favorite spot in the neighborhood? Well, times have not changed that much. Children today get as much fun out of playground equipment as their parents did. And, unfortunately, they get as many or more bumps and bruises and broken bones as their mom and dad.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that each year 100,000 individuals receive hospital emergency room treatment for injuries connected with public and home equiipment. Most of the injured children are between the ages of 5 and 10. The commission has a pamphlet which offers advice to help you shop for safe playground equipment for your children. A free copy of Backyard Play Equiipment may be had by writing Consumer Information, Dept. 25, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

The following advice is included:

. If the equipment is not fully assembled, be sure there are detailed assembly instructions.

. Stability is very important. Setting the swing set legs in concrete in the ground is the best anchoring device possible. However, if you use the anchoring devices that usually come with the equiipment, make sure all pegs are well below ground level and that there is little or no slack in the chain or cable.

. Cap any exposed screws or bolts. If you cannot find a set with protective caps, tape over these protrusions.

. Do not buy equipment with open-ended hooks; particularly S-hooks; moving parts which can pinch or crush fingers; sharp edges or rough surfaces; and rings with diameter more than five inches but less than 10 inches since children's heads may become entrapped.

Getting married?

The Daily Standard, 205 S. New Madrid St., now has new wedding forms available at the front office or at the women's desk. Business hours are from 7 a.m., to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Forms will be mailed if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is provided.

The deadline for weddings is three weeks after date of wedding. Pictures will be returned if a self-addressed, stamped envelope large enough to hold a picture is supplied. Color pictures are discouraged. There is no charge for running a wedding. We are happy to publish it.

Child abuse legislation strengthen

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond today signed a child abuse bill that would bring more than $7 million a year in federal funds to Missouri.

Bond called the measure "one of the most important pieces of legislation" this session, noting that it would strengthen the state's child abuse laws.

The act sets up a statewide toll-free number to report suspected cases of child abuse. It also expands abuse prevention and treatment programs.

Bond said the law will enable the state to receive another $59,000 grant it is seeking.

Child abuse has become a "real problem in Missouri," the governor said. Since mandatory reporting started in 1969, more than 5,000 cases of suspected child abuse have been reported, with more than 1,100 confirmed, he said.

Senate to debate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Increased welfare benefits, a minimum jail standards bill and more tax exemptions for senior citizens face Missouri Senate debate after being approved by the Senate Budget Control Panel.

The budget committee Thursday passed the Aid to Dependent Children measure, 4-3, after rejecting the proposal last week.

The proposal costing an additional $8 million would increase benefits per family member $8 monthly. Gov. Christopher S. Bond has recommended an $8 per family hike costing about $2.5 million.

Senators have said the $8 per person proposal may be reduced to $5 per person on the Senate floor to avoid a veto by the governor.

Rep. Russell Howard, D-St. Louis, who sponsored the $8 per person proposal through the House, said he would go along with the $5 per person version.

The jail standards bill has been revised in a Senate committee to allow local rather than state enforcement of the regulations.

Rep. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, said he would urge another change to prohibit judges from transferring prisoners to jails that have met minimum standards unless the receiving county approved the transfer.

Child abuse legislation strengthen

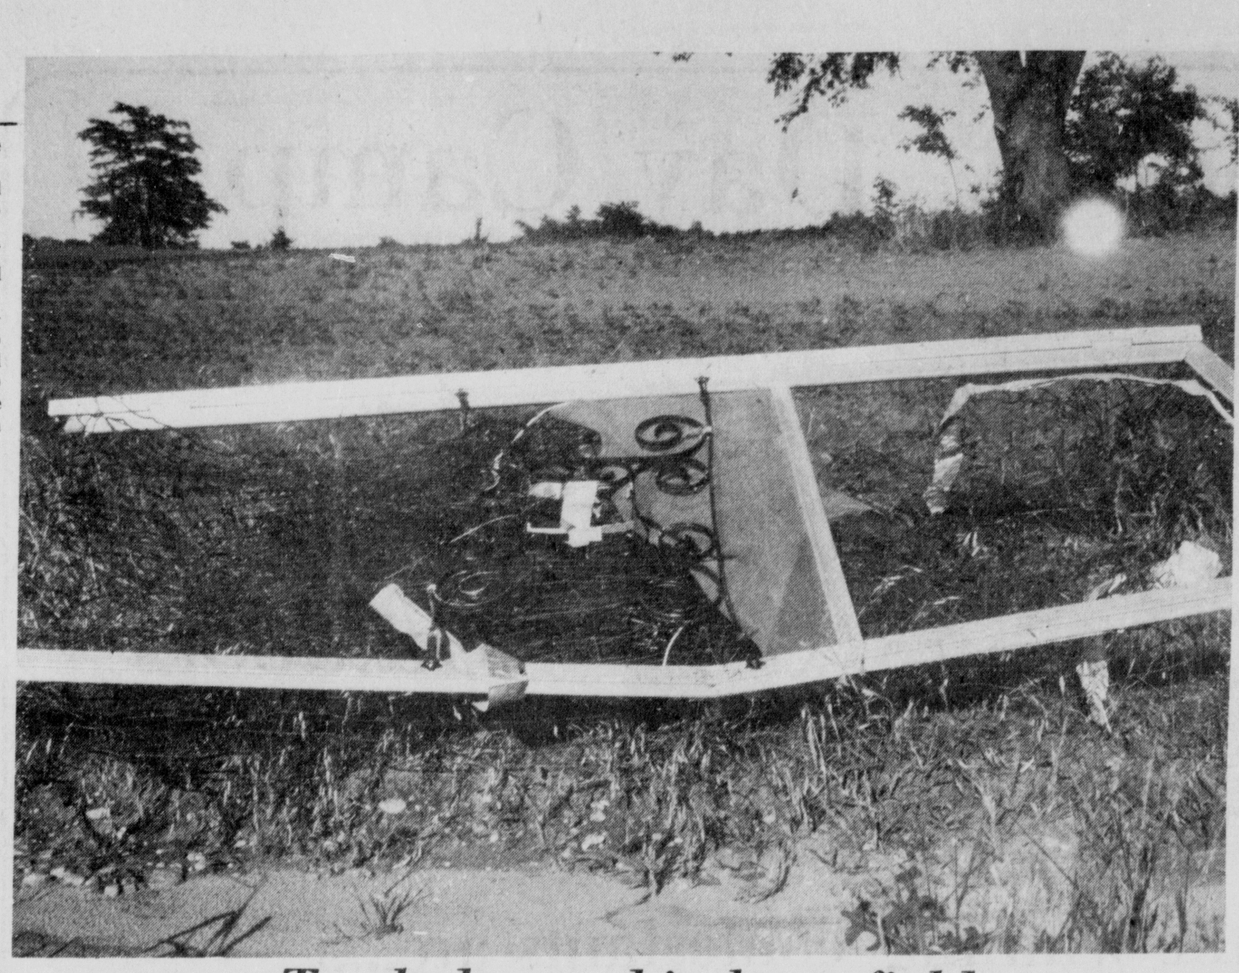

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond today signed a child abuse bill that would bring more than $7 million a year in federal funds to Missouri.

Bond called the measure "one of the most important pieces of legislation" this session, noting that it would strengthen the state's child abuse laws.

The act sets up a statewide toll-free number to report suspected cases of child abuse. It also expands abuse prevention and treatment programs.

Bond said the law will enable the state to receive another $59,000 grant it is seeking.

Child abuse has become a "real problem in Missouri," the governor said. Since mandatory reporting started in 1969, more than 5,000 cases of suspected child abuse have been reported, with more than 1,100 confirmed, he said.

Senate to debate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Increased welfare benefits, a minimum jail standards bill and more tax exemptions for senior citizens face Missouri Senate debate after being approved by the Senate Budget Control Panel.

The budget committee Thursday passed the Aid to Dependent Children measure, 4-3, after rejecting the proposal last week.

The proposal costing an additional $8 million would increase benefits per family member $8 monthly. Gov. Christopher S. Bond has recommended an $8 per family hike costing about $2.5 million.

Senators have said the $8 per person proposal may be reduced to $5 per person on the Senate floor to avoid a veto by the governor.

Rep. Russell Howard, D-St. Louis, who sponsored the $8 per person proposal through the House, said he would go along with the $5 per person version.

The jail standards bill has been revised in a Senate committee to allow local rather than state enforcement of the regulations.

Rep. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, said he would urge another change to prohibit judges from transferring prisoners to jails that have met minimum standards unless the receiving county approved the transfer.

Hunter puts Yanks in second

The Catfish is no longer floundering — and as a result, the New York Yankees are surfacing.

"I'm in the groove now and know what I'm doing," said Catfish Hunter after beating the Minnesota Twins 7-4 Thursday.

Hunter, the Yankees' expensive right-hander, finally appears to be worth his weight in the gold they're paying him. The Yankees' $3.75-million man, who couldn't win a game in April, now has won eight of his last 10 decisions.

And the Yankees have sailed over the .500 level for the first time this season and moved into second place, three games behind the first-place Boston Red Sox in the American League East.

In the other AL games, Cleveland beat Kansas 8-7 in 11 innings and California defeated Detroit 8-3. The Texas-Baltimore game was rained out. In National League action, the New York Mets whipped Houston 2-1 and the Chicago Cubs beat San Francisco 8-4.

"I've always been a poor April pitcher," said Hunter, 8-5, explaining his revitalization. He pitched a one-hitter last time out against Texas, but was a little less artistic this time — giving up eight hits, two of them home runs to the red-hot Rod Carew.

Graig Nettles slammed a two-run homer in the seventh inning to unlock a 4-4 tie created in the fifth by Carew's run-scoring single. Nettles then added an RBI single in the ninth for the Yankees' final run.

Nettles' timely hitting overcame another brilliant performance by Carew, who raised his batting average to .425.

"I can't remember ever having a better stretch," said Carew, who has an amazing 15 hits in his last 18 at-bats. "But it starts getting frustrating when we keep losing. I don't really have any personal goals left. The Big Apple, the World Series, is the only way to make money in this game."

Indians 8, Royals 7

Buddy Bell's fourth home run or the year, with with one out in the 11th inning, carried Cleveland over Kansas City. The Indians, losing by four runs after seven innings, scored three times in the eighth and tied the game 7-7 on Rick Manning's RBI triple in the ninth.

Angels 8, Tigers 3

Billy Smith's- two-run single capped a four-run rally in the fourth inning that vaulted California from a three-run deficit to victory over the Tigers. Bill Singer scattered eight hits to improve his record to 5-7 overall and 5-0 in his career against Detroit.

Mets 2, Astros 1

Tom Seaver fired an eight-strikeout six-hitter for his eighth victory and Dave Kingman's run-scoring single snapped a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning as New York beat Houston.

Cubs 8, Giants 4

Bill Madlock's eighth-inning single, his third hit of the game, drove home the tie-breaking run as Chicago exploded for four runs to defeat San Francisco.

728 players drafter

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's free-agent draft was in the first round of its secondary phase Thursday when the Los Angeles Dodgers delivered an eloquent compliment to the scouting systems of the 24 major league teams.

They passed.

That meant that the Dodgers, picking 18th in the secondary phase rotation, couldn't find a leftover prospect suitable to draft.

The Dodgers and the 23 other major league clubs had gone through 16 regular draft rounds and 384 players Wednesday without anybody passing.

But the secondary phase deals with players drafted previously and not signed. Apparently there wasn't enough talent left in that area to interest the Dodgers when their turn came.

That was a tipoff the secondary draft wouldn't last long, and it didn't. Only 49 players were chosen in four rounds before the clubs returned to the regular phase and players who were being chosen for the first time.

The No. 1 choice in the secondary draft was outfielder Dennis Walling of Clemson University, who was selected by the world champion Oakland A's. Walling batted .421 and was the most valuable player in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Last year, Walling was drafted in the eighth round of the regular phase by the San Francisco Giants, who offered him about $5,000 to sign. "Education is worth a lot more than that," said Walling's father, Jacob. "They won't get him cheap."

Walling set Clemson records with 59 hits, 46 runs and 113 total bases this season and led the NCAA Division I schools with 60 runs batted in in 38 games. He had 13 home runs.

"If the money's there, I'm going to sign," he said.

After the A's picked Walling, St. Louis chose right-handed pitcher Earl Bass of the University of South Carolina. Bass, 15-0 this season and 32-2 for his career, leads the Gamecocks into the College World Series at Omaha, Neb., beginning Friday. He had previously been drafted last June by Cleveland and last January by the Dodgers.

One of Bass' teammates, outfielder Ronald Hancock, went later in the first round to the California Angels.

Two other teammates from Miami-Dade South Junior College were chosen in the first round of the secondary phase. They were outfielder-pitcher Gilbert Patterson, picked by the New York Yankees, and outfielder Del Bender, selected by Montreal.

An interesting development of both phases of the draft was the absence of first round selections from the University of Southern California and Arizona State. Both schools have produced many big-leaguers and are usually tapped early.

But the only player chosen from either school in the opening round of the regular and secondary drafts was shortstop Phillip Doktor of USC, chosen by Detroit in Thursday's first round.

In all, a total of 728 players — two more than last year — were chosen in regular and secondary phases of the two day telephonic draft.

Spring is here! For safety's sake...

plant your Shrubs and Trees Carefully!

Remember... newly planted trees and shrubs reach upward and outward an amazing distance as they grow!

When planting trees and shrubs near a utility line, it pays to make sure they won't interfere with electric or telephone service when they mature. For safety's sake, observe these minimum planting distances from utility lines:

10 ft. for shrubs maturing to 15 ft. high
20 ft. for trees that will grow to 25 ft. high
30 ft. for trees that will grow to 40 ft. high

If you plant closer than these minimums, trees and shrubs may require severe pruning, destroying their natural beauty.

HOW TO LEARN MORE ABOUT FISHING

We receive many letters from viewers of our weekly television series stating that they have greatly improved their fishing by watching our show. One of the best ways to learn to fish is to go fishing every chance you get. Seems like the things you learn while fishing stay with you longer.

Another way to learn to become a more successful fisherman is to read books and outdoor columns by fishing experts. Watch every fishing show you can. You'll see a new species of fish being caught, a new lure demonstrated, new equipment being used and observe new methods you too can use.

Virgil Ward

There are many fine outdoor editors across the country, fellows like Fred Maly of San Antonio, Texas; Ray Gray of Chicago; Dave Harbour and his son Doug; Myron Fischer, and the list goes on and on.

Probably 98% of these fellows are sincere, hard working writers who know what they are writing about. Once in awhile though, you will find one such as a self - styled woods and waters expert who gets his information second hand and rarely ever ventures forth from his plush office. When he does go fishing, it is usually in controlled water, which in reality is a fish hatchery! This same woods and waters expert has his hand out to nearly every fishing tackle manufacturing company and when they don't come across with merchandise or money, he takes a verbal swing at them.

I think this type of individual was the namesake for a fishing device. And one we could do without. It is a spring loaded reel that is hung over the water from a limb. When a fish tries to take the bait he triggers a spring which jerks him up out of the water! It's a disgusting sight to see a nice bass hanging just out of the water awaiting a fisherman who often never returns. The device is aptly called a "yo-yo"!

We received a letter recently that was critical of the way we return fish to the water. This writer stated that to throw a fish back into the water would kill it or injure it so that later it will die. We don't advocate ever throwing a fish back. We drop it back or gently toss it back, but the theory that this will injure a fish is just not true. If it were, then fish that leap high into the air to try to climb a waterfall or leap out of the water for any reason would in effect be committing suicide. High mountain lakes in the Rockies are stocked by dropping trout out of airplanes without apparent harm.

When landing big fish such as lake trout that we wish to return to the water, we lift them by the gill cover, being careful not to touch the gills. There is plenty of room to get your fingers between the gill cover and the gills. Other fish such as walleye that you intend to return can be handled by pressing the gill covers firmly between the thumb and fingers, being careful not to let the fish slip, as the gill plates are razor sharp. Pressing the gill plates firmly momentarily paralyzes the fish and keeps him from moving. The safest way is to use a net. A bass, however, can easily be handled by grasping the lower jaw.

Wherever possible we use only single hook lures. At times we even press the barb down. Single hook lures do little damage to the mouth of a fish. Top water lures with several treble hooks are popular but they can damage a fish's mouth and cause a lot of tangles in a landing net.

Most all of the guests, friends and guides we've fished with have a sincere appreciation for the sport and practice true conservation in their fishing. We all realize that being able to fish in clean, clear waters and taking, keeping or releasing a day's catch is a privilege. A privilege which must be respected by the users. Someone once said, "The best way to truly get to know a person is to fish with them for a day." I'd have to agree.

Good luck with your fishing!

career, leads the Gamecocks into the College World Series at Omaha, Neb., beginning Friday. He had previously been drafted last June by Cleveland and last January by the Dodgers.

One of Bass' teammates, outfielder Ronald Hancock, went later in the first round to the California Angels.

Two other teammates from Miami-Dade South Junior College were chosen in the first round of the secondary phase. They were outfielder-pitcher Gilbert Patterson, picked by the New York Yankees, and outfielder Del Bender, selected by Montreal.

An interesting development of both phases of the draft was the absence of first round selections from the University of Southern California and Arizona State. Both schools have produced many big-leaguers and are usually tapped early.

But the only player chosen from either school in the opening round of the regular and secondary drafts was shortstop Phillip Doktor of USC, chosen by Detroit in Thursday's first round.

In all, a total of 728 players — two more than last year — were chosen in regular and secondary phases of the two day telephonic draft.

Spring is here!
For safety's sake...

plant your Shrubs and Trees Carefully!

Remember... newly planted trees and shrubs reach upward and outward an amazing distance as they grow!

When planting trees and shrubs near a utility line, it pays to make sure they won't interfere with electric or telephone service when they mature. For safety's sake, observe these minimum planting distances from utility lines:

10 ft. for shrubs maturing to 15 ft. high
20 ft. for trees that will grow to 25 ft. high
30 ft. for trees that will grow to 40 ft. high

If you plant closer than these minimums, trees and shrubs may require severe pruning, destroying their natural beauty.

CHAMPIONSHIP FISHING

HOW TO LEARN MORE ABOUT FISHING

We receive many letters from viewers of our weekly television series stating that they have greatly improved their fishing by watching our show. One of the best ways to learn to fish is to go fishing every chance you get. Seems like the things you learn while fishing stay with you longer.

Another way to learn to become a more successful fisherman is to read books and outdoor columns by fishing experts. Watch every fishing show you can. You'll see a new species of fish being caught, a new lure demonstrated, new equipment being used and observe new methods you too can use.

Virgil Ward

There are many fine outdoor editors across the country, fellows like Fred Maly of San Antonio, Texas; Ray Gray of Chicago; Dave Harbour and his son Doug; Myron Fischer, and the list goes on and on.

Probably 98% of these fellows are sincere, hard working writers who know what they are writing about. Once in awhile though, you will find one such as a self-styled woods and waters expert who gets his information second hand and rarely ever ventures forth from his plush office. When he does go fishing, it is usually in controlled water, which in reality is a fish hatchery! This same woods and waters expert has his hand out to nearly every fishing tackle manufacturing company and when they don't come across with merchandise or money, he takes a verbal swing at them.

I think this type of individual was the namesake for a fishing device. And one we could do without. It is a spring loaded reel that is hung over the water from a limb. When a fish tries to take the bait he triggers a spring which jerks him up out of the water! It's a disgusting sight to see a nice bass hanging just out of the water awaiting a fisherman who often never returns. The device is aptly called a "yo-yo"!

We received a letter recently that was critical of the way we return fish to the water. This writer stated that to throw a fish back into the water would kill it or injure it so that later it will die. We don't advocate ever throwing a fish back. We drop it back or gently toss it back, but the theory that this will injure a fish is just not true. If it were, then fish that leap high into the air to try to climb a waterfall or leap out of the water for any reason would in effect be committing suicide. High mountain lakes in the Rockies are stocked by dropping trout out of airplanes without apparent harm.

When landing big fish such as lake trout that we wish to return to the water, we lift them by the gill cover, being careful not to touch the gills. There is plenty of room to get your fingers between the gill cover and the gills. Other fish such as walleye that you intend to return can be handled by pressing the gill covers firmly between the thumb and fingers, being careful not to let the fish slip, as the gill plates are razor sharp. Pressing the gill plates firmly momentarily paralyzes the fish and keeps him from moving. The safest way is to use a net. A bass, however, can easily be handled by grasping the lower jaw.

Wherever possible we use only single hook lures. At times we even press the barb down. Single hook lures do little damage to the mouth of a fish. Top water lures with several treble hooks are popular but they can damage a fish's mouth and cause a lot of tangles in a landing net.

Most all of the guests, friends and guides we've fished with have a sincere appreciation for the sport and practice true conservation in their fishing. We all realize that being able to fish in clean, clear waters and taking, keeping or releasing a day's catch is a privilege. A privilege which must be respected by the users. Someone once said, "The best way to truly get to know a person is to fish with them for a day." I'd have to agree.

Good luck with your fishing!

Virgil Ward

Springtime is baby animal time and inevitably conservation agents are plagued with "abandoned" baby animals, picked up by well-meaning people. The agents stress that people should leave baby animals alone. Very seldom are the babies abandoned, but wildlife mothers may hide when people approach.

Saints club Truss, 20-1

The talent-laden Sikeston Saints ended Truss's first-place residence with a thud last night, as a disgruntled Mitch Walker led his mates to a 20-1 romp. Walker, along with some of his mates, was upset by a Standard story proclaiming "Truss Leads Independents", when the two teams were tied for first. The story went on to explain that fact, but the headline as enough to inspire the young righthander to his finest performance in a couple years, while claiming his first win and running the Saints' overall mark to 5-0.

Walker was slated for outfield duty only this season, but, with a tough weekend schedule he was pressed into service and went the route in his first start since last August. In seven innings the righthander fanned 16, allowed just two hits and an unearned run, while adding four hits, including a pair of doubles to the 23-hit Saints offensive barrage.

There is now way that a 20-1 game can be a one man show. Walker got more than ample support from his hirters. A dozen players suited out. All played. Eleven got a hit, and ten each scored or drove in a run.

Hitting stars were understandably many—

Catcher John Leible reached base five straight times, with three hits, including a triple, and stole three bases. Firstbaseman Jim Saulter ripped a double among his three hits and drive home four runs. Les Schatzley had a double, a triple, two rbi's and three stolen bases. And, Tom Masterson and Steve McPheeters, the "old men" in the lineup did their share. Three hits by the 26-year old Masterson raised his team-leading batting average to a lofty .600. Included in his safeties were a 400-foot triple to center and a double. McPheeters had a double and a single, while reaching base three times. Shortstop Rick Eisenbach matched McPheeters' two hits, scored three time and stole one of the ten bases the Saints pilfered.

The loser for Truss was Danny Slaten. Mike Collier and Buster Dalton had the only safeties. Dalton's was a one-out triple in the first into the centerfield trees. Walker however retired the next two. Truss's only tally came in the fifth on a wild pitch.

Springtime is baby animal time and inevitably conservation agents are plagued with "abandoned" baby animals, picked up by well-meaning people. The agents stress that people should leave baby animals alone. Very seldom are the babies abandoned, but wildlife mothers may hide when people approach.

Saints club Truss, 20-1

The talent-laden Sikeston Saints ended Truss's first-place residence with a thud last night, as a disgruntled Mitch Walker led his mates to a 20-1 romp. Walker, along with some of his mates, was upset by a Standard story proclaiming "Truss Leads Independents", when the two teams were tied for first. The story went on to explain that fact, but the headline as enough to inspire the young righthander to his finest performance in a couple years, while claiming his first win and running the Saints' overall mark to 5-0.

Walker was slated for outfield duty only this season, but, with a tough weekend schedule he was pressed into service and went the route in his first start since last August. In seven innings the righthander fanned 16, allowed just two hits and an unearned run, while adding four hits, including a pair of doubles to the 23-hit Saints offensive barrage.

There is now way that a 20-1 game can be a one man show. Walker got more than ample support from his hirters. A dozen players suited out. All played. Eleven got a hit, and ten each scored or drove in a run.

Hitting stars were understandably many—

Catcher John Leible reached base five straight times, with three hits, including a triple, and stole three bases. Firstbaseman Jim Saulter ripped a double among his three hits and drive home four runs. Les Schatzley had a double, a triple, two rbi's and three stolen bases. And, Tom Masterson and Steve McPheeters, the "old men" in the lineup did their share. Three hits by the 26-year old Masterson raised his team-leading batting average to a lofty .600. Included in his safeties were a 400-foot triple to center and a double. McPheeters had a double and a single, while reaching base three times. Shortstop Rick Eisenbach matched McPheeters' two hits, scored three time and stole one of the ten bases the Saints pilfered.

The loser for Truss was Danny Slaten. Mike Collier and Buster Dalton had the only safeties. Dalton's was a one-out triple in the first into the centerfield trees. Walker however retired the next two. Truss's only tally came in the fifth on a wild pitch.

The instant it happened

"We love you, Lou"

Is it a tear?

No wind blows dust this day, a sunny Fourth of July in Yankee Stadium, appreciation day for Lou Gehrig, who has played 2,130 straight games for the New York Yankees — a record.

It is 1939. War seems inevitable in Europe, but for the 61,808 fans gathered in the Bronx there is only one purpose: to honor a man who has played brilliantly and steadily in the shadow of Babe Ruth — some think even better than the flamboyant slugger who preceded him in the batting order on "murderers' row."

People first noticed him the day he stepped to the plate at Wrigley Field, slammed a ball over the right field fence and won his high school championship. Then they, and a Yankee scout, noticed when his Columbia University team played Rutgers in the spring of 1923 and he lofted two pitches into the trees and a third onto the Columbia library steps.

They cheered that June when he suited up alongside his idol, the Babe, and hit .313 in his first full season. They cheered as shyly, quietly, he slugged his way into baseball's firmament—& always on the fringe of his hero's limelight. The Babe had splash, and they cheered themselves hoarse for Ruth, only to find they didn't have as much voice left when Lou Gehrig hit one just as far. But he didn't really mind. Good naturedly, efficiently, he batted .373 in his second season,then .374, .300, .379, .341, .349, .334, .363, .329, .354 and .351. They called him the "Iron Horse."

Then, on July 13, 1934, they watched him falter. He had picked a single off the Tigers in Detroit, run to first and doubled over — with a rare kind of paralysis called "amytotrophic lateral sclerosis." It would kill him, slowly, over the next seven years.

They are chanting, "We love you, Lou," as Muray Becker of the Associated Press, halfway down the first base line, trains his Graflex on Lou Gehrig's face. Gehrig steps to the home plate mike.

Silence. In a moment, he will manage: "..I may have been given a bad break, but I have an awful lot to live for." But at this instant, the words just won't come. Gehrig looks down,. He puts his hand to his eyes. Becker presses the shutter, and on his caption card he writes: "Lou Gehrig is crying."

Bill passed to regulate festivals

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House has passed a weakened bill regulating rock music festivals and returned it to the state Senate.

In other action Thursday, a bill to require initiative and referendum proposals to carry statements of their cost was defeated 66-83.

The House also okayed and sent back to the Senate a measure that sets up a state registry of all administrative rules and regulations of state agencies.

The Senate confirmed Gov. Christopher S. Bond's appointment of Kansas City realtor Stephen Jones to the state Public Service Commission.

The House-amended rock festival measure removes several detailed rules that would have to be met by promoters of festivals attracting more than 5,000 persons and lasting longer than 12 hours.

The measure was spurred by last summer's Ozark Music Festival which attracted an estimated 160,000 persons. A Senate investigation of the three-day event said the festival at the state fairgrounds at Sedalia caused a drug problem.

Requirements eliminated by the House would have required promoters of the festival to provide 6,400 garbage cans, 4,000 flush toilets, 7.2 million gallons of water and other items.

The House also rejected an emergency clause that was tacked on to regulate festivals this summer. The House version would go into effect Sept. 28.

Rep. Al Mueller, D-St. Louis, said the bill would allow counties to decide whether they want a rock festival.

The measure exempts St. Louis, St. Louis County and Jackson County. Representatives from those areas said local ordinances could take care of any festivals.

The state registry of rules is intended to make all regulations easily accessible to the public.

The bill was amended to remove a controversial provision that has been blamed for Bond not funding a maternal health care and hospital aid bill.

The provision requires legislative approval of the rules for those programs, which Bond has called unconstitutional.

The amendment may have hurt the bill's chances in the upper chamber Sen. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, the bill's sponsor, has threatened to remove the measure from consideration if the change was made.

The requirement for a fiscal note on initiative and referendum proposals stemmed from a successful initiative drive last year to pass a strict campaign finance law.

500 mile walk is a good idea

MEMPHIS (AP) — Sgt. David S. Paulson of the Missouri National Guard is getting to Officer Candidate School the hard way—walking the 500 miles to Ft. Benning, Ga.

Paulson started out Sunday at Carruthersville, Mo., and on Thursday, had covered 100 miles, reaching a Mississippi River bridge linking Memphis, Tenn., and West Memphis, Ark.

Paulson told newsmen that buddies laughed at him when he started out on the walk toting a 50-pound Army pack and his other military gear. He said some persons along the way have chuckled.

"When they stop laughing, they say it's a good idea and wish me luck," Paulson said.

Paulson, 26, said the idea of the walk started when he joked with buddies about having a lot of free time to get to Ft. Benning and remarked, "Maybe I'll walk."

Paulson also says he is also out to prove that "the Spirit of '76 is alive and thriving in the Missouri National Guard," to demonstrate that you don't have to have a car to travel and to get himself in shape.

He said before he started out on the big walk, his most athletic endeavor was playing "Scrabble."

Paulson was in the regular Army in 1967, when he narrated recruiting commercials. He is working on his teaching degree at Northeast Missouri State University while serving in the Guard.

The sergeant said sometimes it starts feeling like it is 240 degrees inside his boots, but he has resisted the temptation to accept a ride.

He wants to be to Ft. Benning by July 2 and is trying to cover a minimum of 20 miles per day.

Appropriations legislation sent to the governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Appropriations bills accounting for more than $2 billion of the state's $2.3 billion budget were sent to Gov. Christopher S. Bond after clearing the Missouri Senate Thursday.

Still awaiting legislative approval, however, are a capital improvements measure along with bills funding the General Assembly and higher education.

House and Senate conferees have reached a stalemate over the higher education funds because of disagreement on the formula used for giving funds to the state colleges and universities.

House Appropriations Chairman James Russell insists the schools should be funded according to the average cost per student hour rather than another method used by the Coordinating Board for Higher Education, which makes funding recommendations.

But Sen. Norman Merrell, the upper chamber's money chief, said the funds should be distributed to take into account some courses which are more expensive to offer than others.

The two sides failed to get together Thursday night to discuss their differences despite the deadline for appropriations to be finished by midnight Sunday.

The Senate is expected to act Friday on the capital improvements measure, sending it also to the conference committee.

The measures sent to Bond are $562 million for public schools $768 million for the executive branch, $42 million for the Revenue Department, $116 million for mental health, $484 million for the Department of Social Services and $22.7 million to finance the public debt.

The instant it happened

"We love you, Lou"

Is it a tear?

No wind blows dust this day, a sunny Fourth of July in Yankee Stadium, appreciation day for Lou Gehrig, who has played 2,130 straight games for the New York Yankees — a record.

It is 1939. War seems inevitable in Europe, but for the 61,808 fans gathered in the Bronx there is only one purpose: to honor a man who has played brilliantly and steadily in the shadow of Babe Ruth — some think even better than the flamboyant slugger who preceded him in the batting order on "murderers' row."

People first noticed him the day he stepped to the plate at Wrigley Field, slammed a ball over the right field fence and won his high school championship. Then they, and a Yankee scout, noticed when his Columbia University team played Rutgers in the spring of 1923 and he lofted two pitches into the trees and a third onto the Columbia library steps.

They cheered that June when he suited up alongside his idol, the Babe, and hit .313 in his first full season. They cheered as shyly, quietly, he slugged his way into baseball's firmament — & always on the fringe of his hero's limelight. The Babe had splash, and they cheered themselves hoarse for Ruth, only to find they didn't have as much voice left when Lou Gehrig hit one just as far. But he didn't really mind. Good naturedly, efficiently, he batted .373 in his second season, then .374, .300, .379, .341, .349, .334, .363, .329, .354 and .351. They called him the "Iron Horse."

Then, on July 13, 1934, they watched him falter. He had picked a single off the Tigers in Detroit, run to first and doubled over — with a rare kind of paralysis called "amytotrophic lateral sclerosis." It would kill him, slowly, over the next seven years.

They are chanting, "We love you, Lou," as Muray Becker of the Associated Press, halfway down the first base line, trains his Graflex on Lou Gehrig's face. Gehrig steps to the home plate mike.

Silence. In a moment, he will manage: "..I may have been given a bad break, but I have an awful lot to live for." But at this instant, the words just won't come. Gehrig looks down,. He puts his hand to his eyes. Becker presses the shutter, and on his caption card he writes: "Lou Gehrig is crying."

Bill passed to regulate festivals

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House has passed a weakened bill regulating rock music festivals and returned it to the state Senate.

In other action Thursday, a bill to require initiative and referendum proposals to carry statements of their cost was defeated 66-83.

The House also okayed and sent back to the Senate a measure that sets up a state registry of all administrative rules and regulations of state agencies.

The Senate confirmed Gov. Christopher S. Bond's appointment of Kansas City realtor Stephen Jones to the state Public Service Commission.

The House-amended rock festival measure removes several detailed rules that would have to be met by promoters of festivals attracting more than 5,000 persons and lasting longer than 12 hours.

The measure was spurred by last summer's Ozark Music Festival which attracted an estimated 160,000 persons. A Senate investigation of the three-day event said the festival at the state fairgrounds at Sedalia caused a drug problem.

Requirements eliminated by the House would have required promoters of the festival to provide 6,400 garbage cans, 4,000 flush toilets, 7.2 million gallons of water and other items.

The House also rejected an emergency clause that was tacked on to regulate festivals this summer. The House version would go into effect Sept. 28.

Rep. Al Mueller, D-St. Louis, said the bill would allow counties to decide whether they want a rock festival.

The measure exempts St. Louis, St. Louis County and Jackson County. Representatives from those areas said local ordinances could take care of any festivals.

The state registry of rules is intended to make all regulations easily accessible to the public.

The bill was amended to remove a controversial provision that has been blamed for Bond not funding a maternal health care and hospital aid bill.

The provision requires legislative approval of the rules for those programs, which Bond has called unconstitutional.

The amendment may have hurt the bill's chances in the upper chamber Sen. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, the bill's sponsor, has threatened to remove the measure from consideration if the change was made.

The requirement for a fiscal note on initiative and referendum proposals stemmed from a successful initiative drive last year to pass a strict campaign finance law.

500 mile walk is a good idea

MEMPHIS (AP) — Sgt. David S. Paulson of the Missouri National Guard is getting to Officer Candidate School the hard way—walking the 500 miles to Ft. Benning, Ga.

Paulson started out Sunday at Carruthersville, Mo., and on Thursday, had covered 100 miles, reaching a Mississippi River bridge linking Memphis, Tenn., and West Memphis, Ark.

Paulson told newsmen that buddies laughed at him when he started out on the walk toting a 50-pound Army pack and his other military gear. He said some persons along the way have chuckled.

"When they stop laughing, they say it's a good idea and wish me luck," Paulson said.

Paulson, 26, said the idea of the walk started when he joked with buddies about having a lot of free time to get to Ft. Benning and remarked, "Maybe I'll walk."

Paulson also says he is also out to prove that "the Spirit of '76 is alive and thriving in the Missouri National Guard," to demonstrate that you don't have to have a car to travel and to get himself in shape.

He said before he started out on the big walk, his most athletic endeavor was playing "Scrabble."

Paulson was in the regular Army in 1967, when he narrated recruiting commercials. He is working on his teaching degree at Northeast Missouri State University while serving in the Guard.

The sergeant said sometimes it starts feeling like it is 240 degrees inside his boots, but he has resisted the temptation to accept a ride.

He wants to be to Ft. Benning by July 2 and is trying to cover a minimum of 20 miles per day.

Appropriations legislation sent to the governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Appropriations bills accounting for more than $2 billion of the state's $2.3 billion budget were sent to Gov. Christopher S. Bond after clearing the Missouri Senate Thursday.

Still awaiting legislative approval, however, are a capital improvements measure along with bills funding the General Assembly and higher education.

House and Senate conferees have reached a stalemate over the higher education funds because of disagreement on the formula used for giving funds to the state colleges and universities.

House Appropriations Chairman James Russell insists the schools should be funded according to the average cost per student hour rather than another method used by the Coordinating Board for Higher Education, which makes funding recommendations.

But Sen. Norman Merrell, the upper chamber's money chief, said the funds should be distributed to take into account some courses which are more expensive to offer than others.

The two sides failed to get together Thursday night to discuss their differences despite the deadline for appropriations to be finished by midnight Sunday.

The Senate is expected to act Friday on the capital improvements measure, sending it also to the conference committee.

The measures sent to Bond are $562 million for public schools $768 million for the executive branch, $42 million for the Revenue Department, $116 million for mental health, $484 million for the Department of Social Services and $22.7 million to finance the public debt.

SEGOVIA GIVEN HONORARY DEGREE

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Classical guitarist Andres Segovia, 81, has received the first honorary doctor of fine arts degree awarded by the North Carolina School of the Arts.

The citation honored Segovia for "his life-long contributions throughout the world to the arts and his universal acclaim in the field of classical guitar."

The convocation program included "Reminiscences of Maestro Segovia," a tribute by Jesus Silva, who studied with Segovia and is an instructor of classical guitar at the school. Three advanced guitar students played works by Manuel M. Ponce and Isaac Albeniz.

Segovia, who has been playing the guitar since he was 10, is credited with being the first person to consider the guitar a serious instrument. He has spent his life establishing a quality repertoire for the guitar and performing.

Reclusive Song Writer Cuts Record

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Song writer Barry Mann once had a German shepherd who had very big paws as a puppy. "Then she kind of grew into her paws. I feel like I'm growing into my paws."

Mann, with his wife, lyricist Cynthia Weil, sat in cubicles years ago in a music publisher's office — as Carole King and Gerry Goffin did — and turned out hits for rock 'n' roll groups. Now, at 36, he's setting out to be a performer, singing his songs himself, and he has a new album out, "Survivor," on RCA.

Mann has made a few forays into performing before, but he says he thinks he didn't really want to do it then and now he does.

"My demo of 'We Got To Get Out of This Place' was so good — I was on Red Bird at the time — that we were about to put it out. The Animals had cut it and it was No. 2 in England in one week, so I stopped my record.

"To this day I love that demo; it could be a hit today. I cut it mono and overdubbed it six or eight times. It sounds as contemporary as anything today."

Then there was a song Mann wrote with Goffin, recorded himself and got a top 10 hit with — "Who Put the Bomp (in the Bomp Bomp Bomp)?". "I loved it. A lot of people didn't understand that it was a put on."

Mann made an LP, "Lay It All Out," on New Design in 1971. "It sounded very middle of the road," he says, "slightly esoteric and pastel. I can't believe the difference between it and the new one, vocally and psychologically. It is like this album says, 'Here I am' and the old one says, 'Hey, I'll try something.' This album I feel has a lot of guts; the songs are much more personal. I don't intentionally try to sound like the Righteous Brothers. I feel an affinity to Dylan vocally. In my own head sometimes I can feel Dylan within me. I like the rawness."
